STREET WIDENING FUND IS ASSURED

According to word received in San Francisco last Saturday, this section is virtually assured of NRA financing for the breaking of the Mission street "bottleneck" through Daly City, as well as other street construction requested under the Federal recovery program.

The widening of Mission street through Daly City has long been under consideration, and has been the subject of considerable thought and study, in an endeavor to finance the plan of widening the highway. It is sincerely hoped that the report is authentic and that a plan has finally been developed for the completion of the long desired improvement.

The other work projected, according to the report, includes construction of the approaches to the Bay bridge and extension of the Junipero Serra boulevard and the Great Highway.

The improvements were requested by a delegation headed by Mayor Rossi, of San Francisco, which presented San Francisco's needs to the State Highway Commission recently. The commission is administering the Federal funds.

Other cities and counties throughout the state presented proposals which totaled $90,000,000. The Highway Commission has been allotted only $16,000,00 by the Federal government.

Assurance that San Francisco will not have her requests trimmed came unofficially from the commission, it is said, after an all-day executive session. No change in the tentative budget which called for these improvements was reported.

BREAK IN FIRE ALARM SYSTEM LAST SUNDAY

The blast by the fire department siren last Sunday morning at 2:55 was caused by a break in the main line. After several hours inspection of all the lines by Superintendent A. J. Bodien and his men, the trouble was located on a pole near the high school.

The Crocker district was put in order at once, leaving the Vista Grande section without fire box service for about five hours while repairs were being made, but two men were detailed to circle around in automobiles and notify another who was located in the alarm station, who could give the box signal by hand.

Much credit is due the new system installed in the police department, as with a man at the switchboard, it assisted in a great measure the men in their work.

UNEMPLOYED UNIT SELECTS OFFICERS

A meeting of the Unemployed Cooperative Relief Association, Unit No. 1, Daly City, was held at their warehouse, 190 San Diego avenue, Tuesday evening, August 8, when officers were elected as follows: Chairman, Mrs. C. Davis; First Vice-Chairman, F. Perry; Second Vice-Chairman, A. L. Headrick; Secretary Treasurer, Joe Maisel; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. E. Dake.

A whist party for the benefit of unemployed members will be held in a few weeeks. Watch the cards in windows for tthe date of the whist.

JOS. MAISEL, Secretary.

JUNIOR CATHOLIC DAUGHTERS WILL HOLD BENEFIT WHIST

The members of the newly organized Junior Catholic Daughters of America have completed their plans for a large benefit whist party to-night, Friday, August 11, in the Daly City Auditorium, at 8:30 P. M.

Miss Patricia Kelly, in charge of the arrangements, is being assisted by the Misses Marie Musante, Margaret Kohman, Peggy Murray, Alberta Quinlan, Patsy Cochran and Kathleen Core. Officers of the Junior Court will act as members of the reception committee.

The proceeds of this whist party will start a fund to be used for a "pet charity" which the Juniors will sponsor. You are all invited to be present.

LADIES HOME CLUB MEETING

The regular business meeting of the Ladies Home Club of Colma and vicinity took place at the club house last Tuesday, with a large attendance of members. After tthe usual routine of business was disposed of refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

Anticipating a very pleasant social day on the afternoon of Auguast 22, the ladies are inviting their friends for that day.

THOMPSON CHOSEN BOARD CHAIRMAN

Supervisor Manuel Francis, of Half Moon Bay, resigned his post as chairman of the board at the meeting of the San Mateo county board of supervisors held at Redwood City last Monday. Supervisor Francis has held the post of chairman of the board for the past eighteen months.

Supervisor Francis gave as the reson for his resignation that he was in poor health and unable to properly carry on the duties of the post.

The board immediately accepted the resignation, and Dr. C. V. Thompson, Burlingame supervisor, the oldest member on the board in point of service and for years chairman of the board before the naming of Supervisor Francis, was unanimously elected to succeed to the chairmanship.

As the meeting opened Monday before some hundred spectators, Supervisor Francis announced that he was resigning the chairmanship of the board. He explained his resignation to the board in the following words:

"I have served in this post for eighteen months. I appreciate the cooperation that has been extended to me by other members of the board, but I feel that the time has come when I must give up as your chairman. You know I spent some time in the hospital last year. I am not in good health, and I resign at this time feeling the duties imposed upon me are too arduous. I ask you to accept my resignation."

Following his election, Dr. Thompson took the chair and in a brief inaugural speech said:

"I am grateful to the board for this honor. I want it distinctly understood that I am accepting this post on the assurance of every member of this board that they will co-operate with me. They have promised me there will be no more petty politics and no more cliques, but, on the other hand, that they will do everything in their power to bring about order in county government and the proper installation of the new charter. I pledge my whole-hearted support to these ends, and to carrying out the wishes to the people of San Mateo county."

Dr. Harold E. Morrison, assistant health director of Los Angeles, was recommended to the board of supervisors last Monday for the new post of health director of San Mateo county. The recommendation, made by County Executive Walter T. Kellogg, who received it from the new county board of health, was accepted.

JEFFERSON HIGH OPENS ON MODAY

Jefferson Union high school will open for the new term next Monday morning at 8:15 o'clock.

The additional rooms which have been under construction during the summer are completed and furnished in every detail for work to begin promptly.

The new heater system will be in operation, as well as the new showers in the boys' department. The shower facilities for the girls have been doubled.

New lockers have been installed in the upper and lower halls of the new addition. These are of the large type and provide ample room for coats as well as for books and other school supplies.

Altogether Jefferson High will start the new term under the most favorable auspices—additional rooms well equipped, and additional conveniences for both teacher and pupils.

Principal James Ferguson states that the school work will begin promptly and urges every pupil to register on Monday morning. Otherwise time will be lost and work will have to be made up, which, he says, will be a serious handicap.

DALY CITY TO HAVE DEMOCRATIC CLUB

According to an announcement by S. C. Hinds, chairman of the Algonquin Democratic Club of San Francisco, a Democratic Club is to be formed in Daly City in the near future.

Mr. Hinds has informed the publisher of the Record that "in conformity with the plans of the Democratic leaders to build a well knit Democracy, and at the same time back up the President in his extraordinary efforts to bring about National Recovery, we feel that now is the opportune time to initiate an organization of Democrats in Daly City into the Daly City Democratic Club. Anyone desiring to know further of our plans can do so by getting in touch with me. My address is 942 Hanover street, Daly City. Phone Randolph 6043."

LOCAL POST WINS IN RECENT DRIVE

The San Mateo County Council, American Legion, met in San Bruno, Friday evening, August 4, Daly City Post No. 410 was represented by Comrades Crane, Trier, Tallmadge, Cornell, Miller and Hill. District Commander Harper Knowles presented Commander Orville Tallmadge the one hundred dollar check which Daly City Post won for membership and community service for 1933.

The next meeting of the County Council will be held in Daly City, Friday evening, September 1, at Legion Hall.

District Vice-Commander Crane and Comrades Hill, Dannenburg and Albousky attended the installation of officers at West of Twin Peaks Post No. 433, Wednesday evening, August 2. Department Adjutant James Fisk acted as installing officer, assisted by District Commander Knowles, District Vice-Commander Crane and members of the San Francisco county Voiture 40 and 8. Entertainment and refreshments were served after the ceremonies.

In a recent address, National Commander Louis Johnson said: "We owe it as a duty to our disabled comrades and our country to adopt a definite policy that is based upon reason and justice both to the government and to the veterans. Ours must be a policy founded upon such pure justice that public opinion will rally so strongly in support of it that no group of men will dare attack it for selfish reasons. And no matter how tempting the proffered fruit may be we must never permit ourselves to be carried beyond it." L. M. H.

Merchants' Picnic to be Enjoyed Next Sunday

Don't forget next Sunday, August 13, as the day set for the big annual picnic celebration of the Daly City Merchants' Association, at Oak Cove Park, just west of San Mateo. This annual outing has proved very popular with the people of Daly City, so much so that many people have reserved this day for months ahead, and have preferred this picnic to all others. There will probably be 2,000 people present, all bent on one good time. It will be a place to renew old acquaintances and to make new friends, to play games, to dance, and to feast on the fat of the land.

The caravan will assemble at the City Hall at 9 A. M., on Sunday morning, and will be headed by the city officials, the officials of the Daly City Merchants, and the Eagles' band of forty pieces. There will be an escort of state motorcycle police.

At the grounds Edward Knoll, chairman of the committee on entertainment and refreshments, will be in charge of refreshments; Dr. F. P. Callsen will be in charge of the races and games, and Mr. Arthur Bodien will be in charge of the awards to the winners. Fred Mathers will be in charge of the dancing; W. H. Clay in charge of traffic and direction of the parade; and President Andrew Vireno will maintain a general superintendence over the whole celebration.

Everybody welcome. Everybody invited. You can't afford to miss it.

EAGLES TEAM ON BATTING RAMPAGE

Continuing their heavy hitting of the previous week, the Daly City Eagles baseball team drove out 27 base hits for a total of 23 runs. All of the Eagle boys fattened up their averages. The bombardment on the opposing pitchers started in the very first inning, with six runs being scored on five hits, a fielder's choice and one error. Most of these hits were for extra bases.

Moyle, starting pitcher for the Farallones, was replaced by F. Klung in the first. It must have been an off day for Charlie Muller's starting pitcher, as he has pitched good ball in other games played here in past seasons. The pitchers that followed him to the mound fared no better. Sam Hawley pitched his usual steady game and only let himself out when hits would have meant runs. Plansky's catch in deep center featured, as did Plansky's all around work at third base. One of this boy's hits went for a home run.

Game this coming Sunday on the High School grounds.

Native Daughters Plan Annual District Meeting

On Saturday afternoon, August 19, the Native Daughters of the Golden West of San Mateo county will hold their annual district meeting in Masonic Hall, Daly City. The Parlors included in this jurisdiction are Bonita Parlor of Redwood City; Menlo Parlor of Menlo Park; San Bruno Parlor of San Bruno; Ano Neuvo Parlor of Pescadero; Vista Del Mar Parlor of Half Moon Bay, and El Carmelo Parlor of Daly City.

The Deputy Grand Presidents of these Parlors, with the assistance of various officers therefrom, will exemplify the ritualistic work. The Deputies participating are: Mesdames Gladys Bennett, Isabel Lindquist, Mary Junker, Alice Mattei, Hattie Kelly and Mona Thiesen. Mrs. Irma W. Laird, of Alturas, Grand President, along with other Grand Officers will be in attendance. Mrs. Rena Mathis, Supervising District Deputy of San Mateo county, is in charge of the affair.

OLD TIMER SOLD MINE FOR 'SONG'

By J. W. MARCHBANK
Pioneer in Frontier Mining Work.

Tales recounted by pioneers are invariably of the highest interest, both from the point of view of the hardihood of the men going into strange regions and from the valuable results to the whole world of their discoveries. A typical "yarn" concerns Joseph Russell, and it was spun recently to newspapermen in Vancouver, British Columbia.

"The first Bridge River rush," said Mr. Russell, "was started when John R. Williams in 1897 brought out samples of ore showing free gold. Williams located the 'Forty Thieves' group, now known as the Bridge River Consolidated.

"There were about one hundred and fifty of us in the camp. It took all summer to pack in the first mill. We were paid twenty cents a pound for freighting. In those days we did not know anything about the augite diorite belt. That is, all of us except Mr. Williams, who had worked as a boy in mines at Grass Valley, California. I do not know what he called it by its scientific name, but he knew what formation to look for, as it was similar to that of California.

"Two of us owned the Emmadale claim, now the Pioneer property yielding rich returns, and we sold it for one hundred dollars, fifty dollars each. Fifty dollars was a lot of money. My partner spent his quickly, but I bought myself a tent, a dog, and a horse. The dog got killed, the horse broke its leg—but I still had the tent."

Mr. Russell has been in the Bridge River district most of the last thirty-five years and has been interested in locating many gold claims. In addition to the Emmadale, he has owned placer and lode claims which are now famous. It is noteworthy that the present operators of Pioneer are now getting their greatest values from the Emmadale, where the high grade ore is coming out.

The Pioneer shaft was sunk to a depth of one thousand six hundred feet, and then drifted east into the Emmadale. In the Emmadale the ore goes into the greenstone, and it is in the greenstone that the most valuable finds have been made. The greenstone and the augite diorite merge and in some places it is difficult to tell them from one another.

In explanation of "augite diorite" it may be said that augite is a variety of the well known group of minerals called pyroxene, and as miners are aware, diorite is a variety of trap-rock composed of hornblende and feldspar.

The Russell claims are at the confluence of Gun Creek and Bridge River, and it was there that the first placer gold discoveries in the Bridge River area were made in 1858. The pioneer had his pick of most of the claims, both placer and lode, in the district, and it is his opinion that the lode claims on Gun Creek, back of the Wayside, will prove one of the best properties in the whole camp.

Local Veteran Firemen Have Interesting Meeting

The regular meeting of the Daly City Veteran Firemen was held on Friday evening, August 4, with a goodly number in attendance, the meeting proving to be a most interesting one.

A number of the Comrades present made interesting remarks under the head of the good of the order, addresses being made by Comrades Kingsland and Chaplain Smith, who described a recent trip to Los Angeles.

Following the business session, the Veterans enjoyed a banquet served by Comrades Valenti and Bansfield, and during the course of the banquet everyone present made an address or sang a song, when called upon by William Goldkuhl, the toastmaster. All present reported an enjoyable evening.

One Dead, Ten Injured in Week End Accidents

One man is dead and three persons were injured as the result of traffic mishaps in San Mateo county over the week end, reports from various seceions of the county revealed.

An unidentified man was killed on Sunday at Millbrae, when he stepped into the path of a car driven by John B. Vezina, of San Francisco, on El Camino Real. The dead man is believed to have been a pencil vendor, whose home was in the "jungle" near Millbrae.

Twenty-nine have been killed in San Mateo county traffic accidents since January 1, 1933.

VETERANS FORM ANOTHER COUNCIL

One of the most important moves in Veterandom has just taken place in the counties of the Peninsula. The Council of the Five Counties just to the south, and including San Mateo, have always been under one Council. It was found that the territory covered was too large to get the best results, and steps were taken to divide the territory. This was done, and we have two Councils operating at this time, one composed of San Mateo and Santa Clara counties, and we are mighty proud that Old Glory Post, of this city, was signally honored by having J. W. Allen, the present Senior Vice-Commander, elected as the first Commander.

The Council met last Saturday night at Palo Alto, and among the many important things discussed was the N. R. A. It was reported upon authority that some firms have been chiseling and working under false colors. This is one of the many ways that the Veteran will be able to show the public that his one thought is, "America's Old Guard—Believes in America First."

Any evidences of not fulfilling right to the letter the terms of the codes of organization sent to Washington will be reported to the proper authorities for their information and investigation. We firmly believe that if all the people do not get behind this movement 100 per cent, it will only result in failure, and we owe it to our President to support him loyally, faithfully, and without reserve, until we know conclusively that he is wrong. Fall in behind the N. R. A., and patronize only those who display the Blue Eagle.

Comrade Fred Collins has just returned from his annual vacation, full of pep. From the way he drilled the Ladies' Auxiliary degree team last Wednesday night, he must have been feeling good. Comrade Collins, and every member of the Post, is mighty proud of the progress of the Auxiliary team.

The degree team of the Post will be out very shortly in their swacky uniforms. Without doubt the team will receive so many calls that it will be impossible to fulfill all of them.

The Post will hold their first Citation Night in the Masonic Hall on Saturday night, August 26. All Comrades who were wounded in action and whose discharge supports his claim, are eligible to receive the War Department citation of the Purple Heart. We have four comrades in our Post, and one from San Bruno, who have signified their desire to receive the Purple Heart, and they will be decorated on August 26. The decoration will be made by an officer of the U. S. Army. The program is not completed, but we know that dancing will follow, and the meeting is open to the public, and we are looking forward to a packed house.

The Post meets again on Friday, August 11, and all members and visiting comrades are cordially invited to attend the meetings.

Public Works Employes on a Five Day Week Basis

More than 3,000 per diem employes in the Department of Public Works are to be placed on a five-day-week basis without reduction in wages.

This was the decision made last Monday by Earl Lee Kelly, director of the department, in the program to co-operate one hundred per cent with the President of the United States by stimulating employment.

Statisticians of the department are engaged in computing the average weekly earnings of per diem workers for the past year. From these figures will be established the average daily earning of per diem workers and pay schedules will be adjusted accordingly. It is the intention of the department, says Kelly, to play its part in the National Recovery Act by shortening workers' hours without correspondingly decreasing their average weekly wage, to the end that the spending capacity of these 3,000 employes may not be impared and possibly a few additional men employed.

PACIFIC COAST TO ENTERTAIN SHRINERS OF NATION IN 1935

The Shrine convention in 1935 will be held on the Pacific coast, according to word brought to San Francisco by Hugh Caldwell, former mayor of Seattle, and Judge Howard Findley, of the Washington Supreme Court, who arrived here aboard the Panama Pacific liner California. They are returning from the Atlantic City convention. Caldwell was elected Imperial Assistant Rabban last month and will be elevated to Imperial Potentate in 1935. Judge Findley is Imperial Potentate of Nile Temple of Seattle.

HERE IS THE TRUTH

About the Economy of Operation of the

NEW FORD V-8 CAR

As Approved by the

"KNOW THE TRUTH" ECONOMY RUN

Completed Saturday Noon after 14 Days and Nights of Average Driving

In conducting the new Ford V-8 Economy Run a stock model 4 Door De Luxe sedan was selected. The run was sponsored by Ford dealers in Daly City and Colma, South San Francisco, Santa Clara, San Jose, Mountain View, Palo Alto, Redwood City, San Mateo, Burlingame and San Bruno, and the course of the run was through these same towns, approximately 92 miles the round trip. Dealers from each town, their employes and accompanying observers did the driving.

Keys to the gasoline and oil tanks were held by Chiefs of Police in each city, who supervised and recorded the amounts of gas, oil and water needed at each filling during the entire run.

The object of the run was to prove the economy of operation of the new Ford V-8 under the same driving conditions as employed over a period of one year. Five trips every twenty-four hours (day and night) for 14 days were made, which means that the car was under practically continuous operation. Stops were made at each dealer's place of business as well as service stations, who supplied the gas and oil for the run.

The car was serviced every thousand miles—just the same as any owner of a new automobile will do. There were no trick driving or stunts which might favor the car more than careful Mr. Average Motorist favors his own.

The results tabulated on the right more than prove Ford's claim to being a most economical and practical automobile—justifying every claim made for it.

MILES PER GALLON

Again Definitely Proving That the NEW FORD V-8 is the Most Economical Automobile to Operate Under All Conditions

Here is the Log of the Trip

Number of miles to gallon of gas obtained on entire run	22.30
Distance car traveled in 14 days and nights	6,353
Amount of oil that was required other than regular oil change at each 1,000 miles	None
Amount of water required for radiator during entire run	None

About 893 stops were made.

NOTICE OF TAX SALE

Notice is hereby given that unless the taxes, together with all costs and delinquencies thereon, are sooner paid, the property described in said delinquent tax list upon which the said taxes are a lien respectively, will be sold to the City of Daly City by operation of law at the time and place hereinafter mentioned, in the manner and under the conditions prescribed by law.

Time of Sale—Thursday, August 31, 1933, at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M.

Place of Sale—City Hall of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California.

All the property hereinbefore described is in the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California.

Dated at Daly City, California, August 4, 1933.

JOHN DOYLE, Tax Collector.
By B. C. ROSS,
Deputy Tax Collector of Daly City.

Aug. 4, 11, 18, 1933.

CARRY EXTRA CLAMP

A spare clamp should be carried when driving into remote mountainous areas, suggests the free emergency road service of the California State Automobile Association. A broken spring leaf can usually be temporarily repaired by fastening the broken ends together with a clamp. Any blacksmith can make a satisfactory clamp out of two flat pieces of iron and four bolts. The bolts should be threaded sufficieitly to permit installation on any part of the spring. Long delays can thus often be avoided, particularly in areas where mechanical service facilities are limited.

Yvonne Beattie, of San Jose, Cal., recently celebrated her sixteenth birthday by making her first solo airplane flight.

NOTICE To Taxpayers

EQUALIZATION OF ASSESSMENT ROLL

Office of the City Clerk of the
CITY OF DALY CITY

Public notice is hereby given that in accordance with the General Laws of the State of California and Ordinance No. 94 of the City of Daly City, the Assessment Rolls of the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, for the fiscal year 1933-1934 has been completed and delivered to me as Clerk of said City and Clerk of the Board of Trustees of said City, and will be open for examination in my office at the City Hall from 9:00 A. M. to 5 P. M. of each day, and that the Board of Trustees of the City of Daly City, County of San Mateo, State of California, will meet on the 14th day of August, 1933,

at the hour of 10 o'clock A. M. of said day, and sit as a Board of Equalization to equalize assessments, and will continue in session from day to day until all the returns of the Assessor have been rectified.

Applications for correction of assessment of real estate, improvements and personal property are required to be verified by oath and filed with the Clerk.

Dated: August 4, 1933.

B. C. ROSS,
Clerk of the City of Daly City, and Clerk of the Board of Trustees of said City.

HERE AND THERE

Laying a heavy smoke screen to hide their movements, thieves stole a truck load of oranges from the orchard of John Humiston, at Lindsay, Cal.

Elmore Lewis, of Allendale, S. C., caught a three-foot alligator, a big catfish and a small perch on the same line at the same time with one piece of bait.

Mrs. Dorothy N. Lowe, of Hanford, Cal., has an interlocutory decree of divorce from Baxter N. Lowe, the result of her third suit against him.

Following her theory that plenty of exercise will gain a long life, Mrs. Martha E. Jones, of Walnut Ridge, Arkansas, walks several miles a day to keep healthy.

Some one tossed a package into John Lovci's yard at Wichita, Kan., who gingerly investigated and found several stolen bed quilts.

When Benny Reamer, three-year-old boy of Chicago, fell from the rear porch of his four-story home to a concrete walk, his only injury was the loss of several front teeth.

A burglar broke into the home of Deputy Sheriff Will Duval, of Williamsburg, Kan., ransacking the house and stealing the officer's clothing, badge, and jail keys.

Dale Horton, of St. Louis, is the seventh child, born the seventh day of the week, seventh day of the month and seventh month of the year, about 7 o'clock in the evening, in 1917.

Guilty of stealing gas and electricity by using "meter jumpers," the Rev. John E. Hester, of Los Angeles, was sentenced to a year in jail by Municipal Judge Crum.

The shortest will ever filed in Erie, Pa., was written in pencil on a piece of cardboard by W. S. Halstead, 70-year-old farmer, who committed suicide: "I will what I have to my brother Pete." He had $1,565.

Carl French and Stella Potter were married in Bellow Falls, Vt., recently, using a marriage license which they had procured five and one-half years previously.

Mrs. Rose Wach, of Chicago, declared in her divorce suit that when her husband came home ten years ago with a bottle of liquor and she took it away from him, he closed up like a clam and hasn't spoken to her since.

While I. Francis, of Mills, Cal., was away from home, thieves carried away his windmill and tower.

Walking more than 100 miles from her home, at Cresco, Iowa, to Fenimore, Wis., Mrs. R. M. Moreland is visiting relatives in the latter place.

Without being seen, a thief stole loot ranging from microscopes and typewriters to clothing and money from the Kansas City general hospital over a period of a year.

Imprisoned in the county jail at St. Joseph, Mo., Gus Pusteri, alleged liquor vender, had the bars painted silver and his cell done over in red and white lacquer.

Because she wore six thick woolen petticoats, as is the native custom, a girl in Bratislava, Hungary, escaped injury when her angry sweetheart fired a pistol at her.

Arrested for intoxication, Mrs. Gertrude Loney, of Chicago, pleaded she had to have a drink after one of her teeth was extracted, and the sentence was suspended.

Mrs. Constance Hanley, of Chicago, was driven insane by the fear of the number 13.

Miss Eleanor Kearney, a chorus girl of Chicago, who had imbibed too much, landed in a cell for kicking off a policeman's cap.

Mrs. Paul R. Keston, of St. Paul, was granted a divorce because her husband had forced her to live with a nagging mother-in-law.

Rev. G. A. Studder-Kennedy, of London, declared that "one does not meet a reasonable man in 10,000, and women are worse."

Thomas Jordan, of Wandsworth, England, admitted he stabbed Mrs. Ellen Henley, but said he did it because she pulled out his false teeth and threw them away.

Florence De Villier traveled from South Africa to Philadelphia to have removed a paper clip which had been in her lung for twelve years.

As the congregation in the South side church in Chicago was singing "Lead, Kindly Light," all the lights went out, and candles were used to finish the service.

James T. Saley, of St. Louis, who died at the age of 75, willed his parrot to the nurse who had attended him.

THE FLYING MOLLISONS

Although they crashed and were both slightly injured in landing in Connecticut, the east to west flight of James and Amy Johnson Mollison across the Atlantic should be classed as a success. This couple have added a remarkable joint accomplishment to their notable individual records as long distance flyers.

Before her marriage Amy Johnson had flown alone from London to Australia; from London to Tokyo; from England to South Africa, and had made many other flights which compare with the best feats of men aviators. This year she was awarded the Seagrave Memorial, England's most coveted aviation trophy, heretofore awarded only to men.

Mollison is the first man to twice make the difficult east to west crossing of the Atlantic, and the only man to make it alone. He has also flown from England to Capetown, South Africa; from England to Egypt; from India to England; and from England to Brazil by way of Africa.

Mollison is 28 and his wife is 23. They were married on July 29, 1932. He is a native of Glasgow, Scotland, and joined the Royal Air Force when he was 18. Before taking up aviation, Mrs. Mollison was a London typist.

In a year of many record-breaking feats in aviation the Mollisons' trans-Atlantic flight will be listed among the greatest.

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING

Property owners who have been planning to repair old structures or build new ones better get busy unless they wish to pay heavily for delay. With better crop prices, heavy public expenditures for bridges, roads, public buildings, etc., it is not difficult to imagine rapid improvement in the employment situation and commodity price levels.

Cement, lumber, paint, structural steel, electrical equipment and all manner of building supplies will probably never again, in a generation at least, be at the bargain counter prices we have been witnessing. Today property owners can improve an old building or build a new one, from concrete foundation to fire-resisting roof, at record low figures. There is abundant labor, both skilled and unskilled. It seems certain that the foregoing combination of circumstances is doomed.

And remember that investment and employment are cheaper and better than charity.

WHAT OF HEALTH FADS?

The subject of how to live long is always of interest, which perhaps accounts for the eagerness of the average mortal to seize upon various methods which are recommended for promoting health and longevity, such as doing daily exercise to radio music and the like.

However, there are many who are skeptical regarding the real benefits of strenuous physical activity. One of these wrote a letter to the Cleveland Press, pointing out that Walter Camp, famed athlete and originator of the "daily dozen," died at 65, while he, the writer, had never taken any kind of exercise to speak of and was still in excellent health, although a great-grandfather. He added that "the longest-lived people are the physically lazy but mentally alert."

Commenting on the letter, William Feather, a well-known editor, declares that several years ago he adopted a vigorous health program, including vegetarianism, cold baths and the daily dozen, with this result: "Acute indigestion led to the abandonment of vegetarianism on doctor's orders. Another doctor recommended discontinuance of cold baths. The daily dozen are still pursued, but faith in them has been shaken by the untimely death of their inventor."

Still, we may find many who swear by the health fads and feel that their lives have been saved thereby. As the proverb has it, "What is food for some is black poison to others."

A PREHISORIC MONSTER

After being buried for ages in the fossil beds of northeastern Utah, the largest skeleton ever discovered on land now stand in the Cernegie Museum at Pittsburgh, a striking example of the monsters which roamed the earth during the Age of Reptiles, many millions of years ago.

This skeleton is that of a Brontosaurus, of the dinosaur order of reptiles, 100 feet long and 20 feet high. In life the animal weighed perhaps twenty tons. Alongside of it an elephant would seem as small relatively as a dog beside a horse.

The fossil bed from which it was taken is the most extensive deposit of dinosaurian and other reptilian remains ever discovered. It was found in 1919, and the site is under the protection of the National Park Service. More than two hundred tons of bones and other material of scientific value have been removed for study and exhibition, with very little duplication of specimens.

According to a statement by the Park Service, it is the belief of scientists that these prehisoric animals were originally imbedded in a sand-bar in some ancient river. The sand turned to sandstone and was covered by thousands of feet of other strata of rocks, the whole later having been forced into an upright position by a great volcanic upheaval, which left the fossil bed exposed on a mountain top, where it has recently been discovered.

Through the patient labors of scientists who are continually exploring among such records preserved in the rocks, as well as among the ruins of ancient civilization, salient facts in the world's history which were totally unknown a few years ago are being brought to light.

LONG PUBLIC SERVICE

Of all the men who have served in Congress since the beginning of our government, Joseph G. Cannon, "Uncle Joe," of Illinois, holds the longest record, forty-six years, all of which was in the House of Representatives, although his service was not continuous.

Justin S. Morrill, of Vermont, had the longest continuous record in Congress, a little less than 44 years, divided between House and Senate.

For total service in the Senate, that of Francis E. Warren, of Wyoming, was the longest, more than 37 years. But for longest continuous Senate record, William B. Allison, of Iowa, achieved the distinction with more than 35 years of uninterrupted service to his credit.

None of these records are even closely approached by any present member of either branch of Congress, and it is likely that they will all stand for a good many years to come.

POST'S WORLD FLIGHT

In completing a solo flight around the world in seven days, eighteen hours and forty-nine minutes, Wiley Post, one-eyed Oklahoma aviator, set a record which is likely to stand for some time to come. This was accomplished in spite of a crash at Flat, Alaska, which almost ended the attempt. Post's former globe-circling flight in company with Harold Gatty, in 1931, consumed eight days, fifteen hours and fifty-one minutes. On that flight Post acted as pilot and Gatty as navigator.

Post arrived in New York in time to exchange congratulations with General Italo Balboa, who led twenty-four Italian airplanes in their flight from Rome to Chicago. The General said: "I am most glad on the last day of my stay in New York to meet Mr. Post after his splendid world trip. I think no single man will do what he has done for a long time to come."

Before marriage a man declares he will be master of his home or know the reason why. After marriage he knows the reason why.

A reformer advocates abolishing the films. But what would certain toothpaste manufacturers do without them?

A writer tells of a seamstress who became a teacher, then lost her job and "fell back on the needle." Ouch!

Arthur Brisbane says a man should retire at the age of 90. We have about decided to take his advice, if we can afford to live that long.

Folks who are to take vacations this summer should be getting into phyisical condition to stand the strain.

Warm weather will favor our London delegates if they lose their clothes and have to come home in a barrel.

Nations inclined to flout the League of Nations should be warned by what has happened to Japan.

WE BACK UP

—This statement with facts: that statistics from the Census Department shows that the average number in an American family is four and one-fifth. We wonder if the one-fifth is father.

Another statement we'll back up is: that if we do the repair work on your car that it won't be done like a schoolboy washes his ears—we'll make a thorough job of it; and when we start on your job we don't waste our time looking for a wrench and then try to find a nut to fit the wrench.

Johnson's Faithful Dog Grieves Self to Death

In a recent issue of the San Francisco Examiner appeared the following tribute to a faithful dog. We don't know who wrote it, but the following will be appreciated by every lover of the faithful dog:

"Dogs aren't human. They haven't got souls. They haven't got hearts that break.

"Yet it's a curious coincidence that Danny died last night. Died in the Burlingame pound just 48 hours after he came upon the body of his beloved master, Archie Johnson, in the Hillsborough home they shared. Archie Johnson died by his own hand, a bullet in his heart. It was Danny who found him, and Danny's voice which summoned other humans to Archie Johnson's side, too late to do anything for him.

"Danny was a Great Dane, six feet from nose to tail, nearly 4 feet tall—a giant among dogs. With a heart to match, a big, gentle heart, and most of it given to Archie Johnson.

"Archie Johnson lost his wife shortly before he died. He lost his faith in himself. But he didn't lose Danny's love. Danny was right there waiting for his master every night, every morning.

"Last October, when it seemed that Danny was going to die, Archie Johnson bought a bottle of poison to end Danny's suffering. He didn't use it then but when Archie Johnson's body was found that bottle was by his side. One of Archie Johnson's last thoughts was for Danny, that's certain. That bottle showed that. Maybe Archie Johnson wanted to take Danny along with him, and then changed his mind. Nobody knows that now.

"Archie Johnson was buried Wednesday. And yesterday a woman who lives near the Johnson home found an old, weakened dog lying in a field near the Johnson home. She threw a blanket over the old dog and carried water.

"Danny—yes, it was Danny—didn't want the water. He thanked the kindly woman with his eyes and then lay down his head. The woman called Poundmaster E. J. Johnson, who recognized Danny and called the Johnson family. A veterinarian was called from San Francisco, but he couldn't do anything about it.

"And so Danny died. Followed his master after 48 hours.

"Dogs aren't human. They haven't got souls. Or hearts that break. Sure, anyone can tell you that."

Mass for the Navy to be Celebrated Next Sunday

Admiral J. M. Reeves, commander of the U. S. battle force, will head a large delegation of city and state officials, civic and ecclesiastical dignitaries, high ranking naval officers and enlisted men at the solemn Mass for the spiritual and temporal welfare of the fleet at St. Mary's Cathedral, San Francisco, Sunday morning.

The Mass will begin at 11 A. M., with the Most Reverend Archbishop Edward J. Hanna, D. D., presiding and preaching. The event will be the official Catholic welcome to the battle force, and will mark the opening of fleet week. An elaborate program for the entire week has been planned, including Harbor Day, Angust 17, sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Many California Hunters in the Field This Year

The opening of the deer season in coastal districts August 1 brought more hunters into the field than last year. The sale of deer tags showed an increase this year over 1932 also. In the San Francisco office of the Division of Fish and Game there was an increase of over 10 per cent.

The increase noted this year is believed to be due to the reports of a plentiful supply of deer throughout the state, as well as the fact that the hunting license for the year is but $2, whereas the hunters last year had to pay $3 for 18 months hunting.

From information received from game wardens, it is indicated there will be a notable increase in the sale of hunting licenses this year. Quail are reported more plentiful; the hunters will have a short open season on phesants, and wild pigeons will be a game bird that can be shot this year; these with the sport offered by rabbits, wild ducks geese and doves have increased interest in hunting throughout the state.

All game, birds and animals, seem to have benefited by the late rains this season.

SYNOPSIS

With his yacht, the Intrepid, abandoned by its crew, Felix Horton, millionaire, with his mother, his daughter Nan, and Roy Stuart, puts into Squaw Harbor, Alaska, to recruit. He engages a bunch of nondescripts stranded there. A gigantic Pole, Sandomar, is their leader. Captain Waymire, the Intrepid's skipper, is an old friend of Eric Ericssen, unemployed sailor, and Eric engages to sail as chief officer. Nan and Eric indulge in a moonlight flirtation, which brings them both to the threshold of love. The Intrepid is wrecked. Eric takes command of a small boat, with Horton and his party. Unable to help, they watch Sandomar kill Captain Waymire and leave the ship with his crowd. On landing, they learn there is no communication with the outside world. Fireheart, priestess of the island, descended from a white man in the remote past, knowing a little English, welcomes the castaways. Sandomar declares there shall be no law on the island, but Eric, having the only gun, cows him for the time, declaring he is the law. He lays out work for all. Eric's love for Nan swells, and he tells her he means to win her for his mate. She is not unwilling. Fireheart claims Eric as her own, and realizing the importance of her friendship he is forced to temporize. Defending himself from attack, Eric's revolver apparently misfires. Sandomar, deaf, does not hear the trigger fall, nor realize Eric's defenselessness. He turns away and Garge follows him. Eric finds the revolver, which had been Waymire's, is rim-fire, while five of its six cartridges are center-fire. Eric has one effective cartridge.

"It's too early to turn in," she said aloud. Then, in low tones to Eric: "We're all ready. I want to stay here with you and Wilcox till the last minute. I couldn't bear to have you go through it—alone."

"I'll never forget it, Nan. I was starting to break, but you've given me fresh heart. By G—d, I can face 'em now!"

"Dad's watching everything, about fifty steps off. He's going to come in at the first sign of trouble. And don't worry about me, Eric. I've given you my promise, and I'll keep it. As soon as I see there's no hope for you, I'll sprint for the boat."

"Good girl! I think that's better than trying to leave now. Sandomar might get it into his head to follow you—and anything might happen in the darkness." He drew a long breath. "Nan, are you all right?"

"Ripping." But the glitter in her eyes and the crimson flower in each pale cheek belied her words.

"I'm not going to wait any more. I think they've got some game, and I mean to beat 'em to it. If I show them I'm not afraid of them, maybe they'll back down."

Nan steeled her suffocating heart and leveled her gaze to his. "I don't believe they can stop you. . . . Now let drive."

Eric stepped full into the firelight. "Garge," he called clearly.

There was a brief silence. The gang, massed around Sandomar, froze in their tracks. "I'm 'ere," the little cockney answered at last.

"The fire's getting low. You and Sandomar rustle some driftwood."

The gang stared long at Eric, to see if his gaze would fall. It only grew sharper, so one by one they turned expectant eyes to his adversary. It was Garge who had brought the tale of the defective revolver: here was a direct and unmistakable challenge for him to prove his story. No doubt Eric was bluffing, but it was a bold bluff, and these bold men gave him credit.

Sandomar grunted a question; Garge waggled an answer. But Eric's voice cracked through the silence, cutting the parley short.

"You heard me, Garge? Get some driftwood and be quick about it."

The little cockney steeled his soul and stepped forward. "We ain't going to 'eed your orders no more."

It was all or nothing, now. The men held their breaths.

"Look here, Garge." Eric spoke slowly and clearly. "I haven't forgotten what you and your pal tried this afternoon, and I'm just hoping for a chance to pay you back. I give you and Sandomar one-half minute to obey my command."

"What you going to do if we don't?"

"I'm going to put a hole through you. And your half minute is going by mighty fast."

"That gun of yours won't shoot!" Garge's voice rose shrill.

The straits were now desperate. "We'll see whether it will or not." Eric drew the revolver, and pointed the barrel straight into the air. "Are you going?"

Eric was no longer cool. His eyes were blazing, his voice hoarse, his posture tense and threatening. Garge's face began to turn gray and weazen up. It might be that he was breaking. . . .

But suddenly, from no visible cause, the whole aspect of the scene changed. Nan's narrowed luminous eyes saw the difference even before Eric's, and her sharp, sane fears swelled into vage monstrous shapes of terror. Somehow, Eric no longer held the upper hand. Garge's pale lips drew into a hideous lear; Sandomar's hands clenched and quivered; the men crouched ready to charge. Events were whirling toward an undreamed climax. Some black plot had prospered—a thunderbolt was about to fall. . . .

"Beside you!" It was Nan's voice, wild and shrill. "Look beside you!"

The fire was to Eric's left, so he whirled to the right. Through the dark wall into the red circle leaped a white wolf in human guise. It was Swede, his tawny hair erect, his eyes no longer pale but red as garnets. In his powerful arms he swung a weapon primal as this scene, a native flint-ax.

There was no more time for cool-headed calculations. Eric's lifted forearm whipped down until there was one steel-blue line between his eyes and Swede's. And the last relic of the Iron age did not fail.

Swede had aimed too high. As the revolver winked in the firelight and spurted gay red flame, he was checked in mid-air, and appeared to strike not at Eric's head but at his feet. With a queer awkwardness, almost comic, his legs shot out behind him and he fell flat, his arms spread wide. At the back of his head the pale hair turned slowly red.

Just as though his magazine was still charged with sudden death, Eric swept the empty weapon before him until its black eye seemed to look straight into the staring eyes of every foe.

"Who wants it next?" Eric asked, bitterly. His lip curled up, in hatred and scorn. "There's seven of you left—why don't you try something?" Then, as their faces turned one by one to yellow tallow: "How about you, Garge? Didn't you say you were through obeying my orders?"

"Beside You!" It Was Nan's Voice, Wild and Shrill. "Look Beside You!"

Garge opened his little squirrel mouth to speak, but he had already talked too much. With a deep, animal grunt, Sandomar slowly stretched out a long arm and raked his half-open hand across the quivering lips. It was a sullen, sulky blow, like that a she-ape might give a comrade that had led her into brambles, and apparently had no power behind it, yet Garge was knocked head over heels into the sand.

Without a glance at his fallen pal, Sandomar picked up the end of a ten-foot pole he had brought from the beach and had laid under the bluff out of sight. For what purpose he had saved it Eric could only guess; anyway it had failed. Lumbering up, grunting, the ungainly creature threw his burden on the fire.

The shower of sparks showed Eric standing tall and grave, his weapon lowered to his side, white flame on his face. Nan waited behind him, her hands clasped over her breast. But Swede, who had not known the Law, did not raise his head, even when the reviving fire crackled cheerily in his ears and cast its growing radiance into his open eyes.

Before Eric slept, he saw that the oars were back in place and all signs of the abortive run-away removed. His victory was not so easy, his future so secure, that he dared ignore one safeguard.

Nan stood haggard and trembling at her turf-house door. "Eric, I couldn't live through another such night. I'd sooner die!"

"You've got to fight on," Eric took her hand in both his own. "We all need you, Nan. I couldn't have won without you, tonight; it was your warning that saved my life. . . . But maybe there won't be any more such nights, for a long time."

"They know you still have five cartridges, don't they? Five—between us and the place where Swede's gone. . . . Anyway, I'll fight on. You can count me in to the last."

As Eric neared his sleeping-hut, what seemed to be a pale shadow detached itself from the grassy wall and came stealing toward him.

"White Chief."

It was Fireheart, who stood with outstretched hands. Eric took them, but his own were cold.

"It is late. You should be asleep."

"I wait for you." Her tone was guttural, yet it had a lilt. "I know you catch'm love now."

"I don't understand."

"When Fireheart leave fire while ago, she no go sleep. She lay, think, roll over, get afraid. Think maybe other white men kill you. By'm'by she hear big noise. She get up, go see. You gone, white girl gone, everybody gone but Swede. He lay by fire, no go any more, no come make love to Fireheart no more. You fix him."

"But I didn't do it because of you, Fireheart. I killed him because I had to—because he attacked me."

There was a long, dreary pause. At last the girl threw back her head. "Maybe you catch love for white girl, yes?" She nodded many times. "Her skin she no much whiter than Fireheart's, and she not know how sew skins, trap birds, but she heap pretty and maybe White Chief want her." The girl's tone harshened. "Fireheart, she love hard—like north wind. But she no-love like boorga, like big gale."

"But the white girl is your friend. You would not try to make trouble for her."

"I wait, I see. If you catch love for her, she no my friend. If I no get you, no girl get you. Maybe I kill her. Maybe I have hunters kill you, too. I am Fireheart, priestess of Lost People."

The Aleut girl grunted and trudged away. Eric lingered in the chill dark, sick of heart, baffled, the pilot-star he followed fading on his sight. Yet all was not lost. His last cartridge had not been spent in vain. Early in the morning Garge came to Eric's hut suing for peace. "Me and Sandy made a mistake yesterday, and we 'umbly ask you to let bygones be bygones," the little cockney said. "We ain't going to make you no more trouble, sir. We sees you 'old the upper 'and, and though we don't much like it, we 'ave made up our minds to stand it."

Eric did not smile, even a grim hint of a smile when he remembered the empty revolver in his pocket. "That's good sense. Otherwise there'll be more lives thrown away. You and Sandomar will be treated just like the others."

"Aye, aye, sir! Now, sir, I'd like to make a 'umble plea." Garge's tone grew confidential. "It may seem queer, coming from me, but I'm making it for Sandy's sake, to keep 'im out of trouble."

Eric could not imagine what was coming. "Go ahead."

"Can't the two young ladies 'urry up and settle down with the men of their choice? They both 'as their preference, no doubt, and it wouldn't be no 'ardship. You see, sir, as long as they're running around free, Sandy won't put 'em out of 'is mind, and make 'isself comfortable with one of the squaws. 'E's like a bull seal, 'e is, and sometime I'm afeared he'll lose 'is 'ead and get 'isself shot. I don't want nothin' to 'appen to Sandy."

There was sober truth, here. Eric promised to give the matter his attention. "But it probably can't be done at once, and in the meantime you'd better keep your eye on Sandomar," he warned. "He's made too much trouble already. If he so much as touches either of the girls, he's going to join Swede very quickly."

This warning echoed solemnly in Garge's mind during a brief, grim ceremony following the morning meal. Native and alien gathered on the beach, forming a half-circle about a still figure wrapped in a sea-lion skin; Eric stood before them and gravely read a chapter from Mother Horton's Bible.

After the brief service, Eric called his friends to Horton's barabara for counsel. Not once did he hint that his weapon was empty—he managed to give the impression that he had solidified his position—but he urged the utmost caution in all dealings with the Aleuts, and repeated part of his talk with Garge.

"There's not the slightest doubt that even lawless men like Sandomar take less interest in a woman with a mate," Eric said. "As Garge put it, there are not enough wives to go 'round, and an eligible girl is a constant source of trouble. As far as I know, Nan is not engaged to any one, but Marie and Wilcox seem to have hit it off, and if she'll marry him, here on the island, it will be better for every one."

The two lovers agreed to tie the knot.

As the sun set in the dreary western sea, the bridal procession started for the chapel. Fireheart led, her dark face transfigured, almost beautiful, with some half-heathen exaltation, the flaming pride of what she deemed her divine ordination. Marie followed in ship's clothes; in attendance came Nan, wearing the blue dinner dress hoarded from the wreck, her dusky skin glowing, her pointed eyes alight. Behind these trailed the remainder of the island populace: hunters, squaws and children, Eric and his friends, Sandomar and his wolves, a strange parade.

In the dusky chapel, beside the tarnished gold candlestick and the single silver ikon, Marie and Wilcox knelt. Fireheart began to chant in some alien tongue of which neither she nor any one here understood the least word. Roy guessed at once that she was reciting the Russian wedding ceremony, as passed down by word of mouth from a bearded zealot of Vladivostok, marooned here nearly two hundred centuries before. But that it was magic of first water the priestess herself never questioned.

Finally she joined their hands, prayed for them with a zeal that hurled Eric's heart into his throat, kissed them both, and bade them rise.

In the silence, Mother Horton began what the Aleuts thought must be the sacred hymn of the palefaces. Her thin voice wavered at first, but gathered power as her tribespeople joined in one by one, singing as though their hearts would break. No doubt it was high magic.

All the castaways were now swelling the chorus save the man called Roy, who was smiling tolerantly, and Sandomar who saw their lips moving but could not understand. The Aleuts wished that they, too, could learn such big medicine, to make at their own weddings when the visitors had departed across the haunted sea:

Should auld acquaintance be forgot, and never brought to mind?
We'll find a cup of kindness yet, for days of auld lang syne.

CALIFORNIA NEWS REVIEW

More than 50,000 persons are estimated to have attended the annual Salinas rodeo, the largest crowd in the history of the annual affair, it is said.

One of the show places of the Conservation Camp at Sequoia is an old cabin which was used by the famous bandits, Sontag and Evans, in early days.

An average of 10,908 persons daily enjoyed cooling plunges in the sixteen municipal swimming pools of Los Angeles one week recently, according to figures compiled by the Playground and Recreation department.

Californians last year consumed 10,086,102 gallons of ice cream, or nearly two gallons for every person in the State. It required the services of 773 people to make and distribute the ice cream which was made in 192 plants. Wages paid were $1,198,236 and the wholesale value of the output was $10,489,546.

Diamonds have been found in California. First finds were in the placer mining days, the rough stones being discovered in the sluice boxes. The largest diamond recorded weighed slightly more than two carats. Other gems found and used by lapidaries are the tourmaline, beryle, kunzite, topaz, garnet and California jade.

A new disease of Douglas fir is reported by Ralph E. Smith, professor, and N. H. Hansen, assistant professor of plant pathology in the University of California College of Agriculture. This is a gall disease of the twigs and stems, and has been observed in parts of Napa, Lake, Santa Cruz, Amador and Siskiyou counties, in marginal localities for the growth of Douglas fir.

Roger Mertz, 6 years of age, of 3568 Smith avenue, Bell, claims the distinction of raising the second largest sunflower in the United States. The gigantic bloom topped a stalk of eleven feet seven inches, and weighs ten pounds. It was planted by Roger early this spring. He obtained the seed from his father's chicken feed. The little fellow watered and cared for the plant himself.

J. Langdon Erving of Montecito, who, in 1924, married Alice Rutherford of San Francisco, died in his home at Santa Barbara after an extended illness. He left his widow and a son, Langdon Jr., and a daughter, Miss Alice. For many years Erving was connected with the Mexican Cable Company. He was national saber champion and junior national foils champion in 1902.

The United Hop Growers of California, in session at Santa Rosa, boosted the pay of hop pickers from ¾ of a cent to 1 cent a pound, and announced an agreement not to enlarge hop acreage in the State. Control of the crop from 28,000 acres of hops is in the hands of 98 growers, Ben B. Steele, president of the association said, declaring that nearly 100 per cent of these growers already have signed the agreement.

Peter P. Myhand of Merced, the member of the State Board of Agriculture who represents the cotton interests, withdrew his resignation as a member of the board which he had submitted some time ago. Myhand resigned because Gov. Rolph vetoed the bill that would have placed an 8-cent tax on coconut oleomargarine and because he thought the Governor had not issued a proclamation concerning "cotton week." The Governor convinced Myhand the proclamation had been issued.

Aaron Riche, president of the B'nai B'rith Officers' Conference of Southern California, has received notification of his appointment as district deputy grand president of Los Angeles by Monroe Friedman, grand president of the B'nai B'rith Lodge in San Francisco. Mr. Riche will represent the grand president for all the B'nai B'rith lodges in Los Angeles, San Pedro and Hollywood. With Tom May, Adolph Sieroty and Charles Brown, Mr. Riche is on the publicity committee of the United Jewish Appeal.

Nearly one-third of the total perishable shipments over the railroads of the United States last year originated in California. With approximately 95 per cent of the totals reported, California shipments were 259,780 carloads, compared to 838,896 for the rest of the country. Oranges took the lead in 1932 as they did in 1931, replacing grapes at the head of the list. The five leading products shipped were as follows: Oranges, 60,947 cars; grapes, 42,183; lettuce, 32,915; melons, 21,612 and lemons, 15,730.

Supplied by the Legislature with a 1933-35 budget of only $30,000, the State Narcotics Bureau will have to operate with four inspectors only on and after August 1, Chief Walker has announced. Eight inspectors and three clerks will be dropped.

Old Ironsides is coming back to San Francisco. Mayor Rossi received word from Lieutenant Commander Henry Hartley, now commanding the U. S. S. Constitution, that the historic war vessel is scheduled to pay a return visit from September 2 to 15.

Fifteen million dollars will be asked of the federal government to bring housing and equipment facilities in state institutions to a point of efficiency, Dr. J. M. Toner, state director of institutions has declared. Increase of 10,000 beds in seven mental hospitals is Toner's major objective.

Steps to solve the problem of caring for unemployed transients, which has been particularly acute, are being taken by R. C. Branion, state emergency relief commissioner. He has called a meeting to be held in San Francisco August 16th and 17th, at which will be present not only representatives of California counties but also of neighboring states as well

Plans are being made in San Jose for the erection of a $25,000 structure, marking the eighth building group which forms the North American headquarters of the Rosicrucian organization at Naglee avenue. The new building will be a Roman basilica sheltering an outdoor auditorium, with a central fountain as one of the decorative features.

Recommendation for a bond issue totaling $27,585,000 was made by the San Francisco Mayor's citizens' advisory committee of 79, following a session, at which four projects, totaling $4,025,000, were unanimously approved. The projects are those which the city will present to the Federal Government for consideration in the NIRA program as San Francisco's contribution to the national program for recovery.

Dropping from an 11,000-foot ceiling almost two miles before he pulled the cord which opened his parachute, "Spud" Manning, Los Angeles delayed-parachute jumper, thrilled a crowd gathered at the Long Beach Municipal Airport recently. When he had fallen more than 10,000 feet the great white spread of his parachute halted his tumble from the clouds—less than 1000 feet above the earth. He then floated gently to a landing without mishap.

Using old-time mining methods, a group of Chinese miners is mining placers along the Klamath River, located in one of the oldest gold fields of California. Power is generated by current wheels in the river, with one wheel driving a derrick which hoists gravel from river bed to sluice. Another drives a Chinese pump. Power costs are practically nil, and the orientals are said to be making good money where white miners failed.

The First Baptist Church must pay taxes on its property at Second and San Antonio streets in San Jose, according to a decision of the Board of Supervisors in denying the church's petition to cancel the $29,825 assessment on its property. The decision was made upon the advice of District Attorney Thomas, who declared the State Board of Equalization had made a ruling that the church property should be assessed because a radio station uses portions of the property for towers to support its aerial.

The state board of equalization offices look more like an employment bureau than like a public tax assessing agency. By letter, wire, proxy and personal call, no less than 1,200 Californians descended on the board with applications for jobs in enforcement of the new tax laws. The board now makes assessments on utility gross receipts, gasoline, beer and truck taxes and, if the governor approves new legislation, will soon be administering the sales and income taxes. Board officials say they now have eighty-five employes and under the expanded program require between 250 and 400.

For reasons of legislative economy, the interium assembly committee to promote legislative economy will not be permitted to print its final report. After investigating legislative conditions throughout the nation at some little expense, the committee came in just before the gavel fell on the recent session with a request to have its full report, recommendations, findings and proposals—112 pages of them—printed at state expense. Assembly officers estimated the cost would be at least $500. Speaker Walter J. Little turned down the request, characterizing it as "too expensive economy."

With I. A. Griffin harvesting, Arbuckle district almond growers prepared to harvest the $250,000 almond crop for which the town is noted. Griffin started earlier than most growers this year, as he has for the last seven or eight years. Most growers will not commence harvesting for ten days. Authorities agreed that due to lack of rain and the hot weather there would only be about a 50 to 60 per cent crop. Colusa county according to the latest crop figures of the census bureau, has a total of 357,979 almond trees of bearing age They produced 3,449,100 pounds of almonds in 1931, or nearly 10 per cent of the total state crop. Practically all the almond orchards in the county center around Arbuckle.

William H. McCarthy, former president of the Pacific Coast Baseball League and of the Mission club has been appointed as acting postmaster of San Francisco. He succeeds Harry L. Todd.

Appointment of Charles W. Lyon, Sacramento labor leader and editor, as field manager for the United States Reemployment Service in Northern California was announced here recently, by John Stellern of Los Angeles, State director of that branch of Federal recovery work.

How I Broke Into The Movies

Copyright by Hal C. Herman

By MARION DAVIES

"BREAKING into the movies" is a magic phrase that implies something akin to pugilism. People immediately associate those words with pushing one's way through guarded doors, jumping over studio fences or resorting to all manner of tricks to gain the inner sanctum sanctorum of the film industry.

I imagine the long, hard, uphill fight is hidden or forgotten behind the sudden emergence of some one person into picture prominence through a particularly well-played part in a given picture.

All the fence-climbing, or "gate-crashing" would be of little avail to anyone if the experience or ability wasn't present to keep the person "inside the gate" in Moviedom.

In most cases, at least, experience on the stage, often many years, has preceded a person's advent into screen prominence. Stars don't "break" into the limelight casually.

It is a hard, hard road, with a world of experience that merely puts the player at the threshold. Even there he or she may fail.

My own path to the screen was no bed of roses, but I feel every bit of it was worth the try.

I made my stage debut at the age of fifteen as a dancer in "Chin Chin," a musical comedy. Shortly afterward I joined the Ziegfeld Follies.

While I was busily engaged in this work I put my few spare hours into posing for many of the foremost artists of America; among them Harrison Fisher, Howard Chandler Christy, Haskell Coffin and Penrhyn Stanlaws. Prior to my theatrical work I had been a cloak and suit model. Strange as it may seem, I consider "modeling" a course in theatrical education, especially in the training it gives a person in carriage and walking.

After the Follies a more prominent part was offered me in "Oh, Boy," another musical comedy. Dancing was not difficult for me, but when I tried to sing I realized that my place was in the silent drama. This realization fired me to try the pictures—more as an experiment than a profession.

My first contract was with an independent company, the initial appearance being in "Runaway Romany." The Selznick Select company then began to star me in such features as "Cecelia of the Pink Roses." After two years I signed with Cosmopolitan Pictures, starring in "When Knighthood Was In Flower," "Little Old New York," "Janice Meredith," "Yolanda" and "Lights of Old Broadway."

And finally, I have decided that light humorous roles are best suited to me such as "Tillie the Toiler" and "The Fair Coed," which I appeared in under the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer banner.

My advice to all who wish to enter motion pictures—or "break into the movies" is to come well fortified with stage experience, if possible. It will prove very valuable.

Una Merkel Had Variety of Roles on the Stage

Una Merkel, which happens to be her right name, was born in Covington, Ky., taught Sunday school, sang in the choir and when she grew up traveled extensively with her parents. She completed her high school course in Philadelphia and entered a dramatic school. She made her first stage appearance in "Two by Two." Following this she played in "The Poor Nut," "Pigs," "Two Girls Wanted," and the lead opposite Lynn Overman in "The Gossipy Sex."

It was really Miss Merkel's work in support of Helen Hayes in "Coquette" that attracted attention to her. Joseph M. Schenck, president of United Artists, saw her in "Coquette," later watched her in "Salt Water" and telephoned Mr. Golden to say that he would like her for a picture. She made her cinematic bow in the Ann Rutledge role in D. W. Griffith's "Abraham Lincoln," and she has been in screen work ever since, which adds up to a little more than three years. Some of the films she has appeared in during that time are "Six Cylinder Love," "The Bat Whispers," "Daddy Long Legs," "Wicked," "Don't Bet on Women," "The Impatient Maiden," "Man Wanted," "Private Lives," "Red Headed Woman" and "Huddle."

American Legion Auxiliary Has an Interesting Session

The regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary was held last Friday evening, August 4. Final plans were made and the delegates given a "good sendoff" to the Department Convention to be held in Pasadena next week, August 14 to 16. KOSHLAND RESIGNS POST

The San Mateo County Citizens' Relief Bond committee has issued a circular announcing the resignation from the committee of Robert J. Koshland, who "has devoted himself unselfishly to the work of relief of the unemployed for the past eighteen months." Resolutions were adopted expressing appreciation for Mr. Koshland's services.

Good Health and its Contributing Factors

By A. A. SHAGHOIAN, M. D.

What is Health? It is a rather difficult job to define health. I found the following definition in one of the dictionaries, which is not bad: "Health is a condition of body and mind in which all the functions are normally performed. A state of being hale or sound in body, mind and soul, freedom from physical disease or pain."

Yes, health is the harmonious and normal functioning of the parts of that most elaborate and complex machine of human body. However, the apparent "normal functioning" does not always insure good health. Often some damage may take place in one of the organs, and yet its function will continue until its limit is reached.

How is damage to the body or its parts done, which interrupts the normal function and creates an abnormal state of the body as a whole, or of its parts? The ill health is caused either by some microorganism, or by some maladjustment in the system. We are continuously in contact with disease spreading germs; we are surrounded by them; our constitution is at war with them day and night. If our health is at its best, it wins the battle, otherwise it succumbs to the disease. Now let us consider some of the factors which contribute to our health, and keep us fit to fight the ememies of our health and carry victory over them.

Food.—It is a well known fact that we all need food to supply us energy as well as to replace the wear and tear of tissues of body. The food requirement of healthy adult will vary considerably with weight, size, age and muscular activity of each individual. The optimum energy intake of healthy adult will be that which coincides with the total energy expenditure, unless it is desired to increase or decrease the body weight. Food allowance for children will be different, of course; they need food not only for expenditure but also for growth. It is important to know the approximately correct amount of food that one needs, otherwise too much consumption of food will add to the body weight which is not always desirable, and an insufficient quantity will cause to draw from the body tissues for the necessary energy, and will have deleterious effect on the organism.

It is not only important to have the correct amount of food to maintain body health, but also the right elements of food. Some food articles are necesary because they supply energy; others in addition to it, go to replace the tissues in the body which have worn out through the activities of the day. The principle constituents of food are Carbonhydrates, Fats, Proteins, Minerals, and Vitamines. Each individual needs these food elements in his daily food intake, and needs them in the right proportion to get the maximum benefit of them. It is as harmful to ingest too much of one food article in exclusion of another, as it is to take insufficient amount of food. In the next article we will discuss the food elements, their sources, and their function in the body.

MOTHERS' CLUB MEET

The regular meeting of the Mothers' Club of Our Lady of Perpetual Help school was held on Monday evening, August 7. As the Mothers' Club is now federated with the National Council of Catholic Women, the speakers of the evening were women who are thoroughly familiar with the work now being carried on by the National Council of Catholic Women.

The main speaker of the evening as Mrs. F. M. Silva, Membership Chairman of the San Francisco Archdiocesan Council of the National Council of Catholic Women. Mrs. Thomas O'Connell, President of Our Lady of Angels Guild, of North Burlingame, also gave a few pleasant remarks. Mrs. John Boyd, County Chairman, and daughter Vera Boyd, motored up from San Carlos to lend encouragement. Mrs. Lovell, of Rousseau, Belmont, also added a few words to spur the Mothers' Club on.

The following members were appointed delegates to the quarterly meeting of the National Council of Catholic Women to be held at the Fairmont hotel, August 26: Mrs. Margaret Fields, Mrs. A. Murray.

The following officers and chairman were duly elected and installed for the coming year of the Mothers' Club: Mrs. A. Murray, president; Mrs. Forest, vice-president; Mrs. Denning, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Kohman, recording secretary; Mrs. Wettstein, historian; Mrs. Roberson, membership; Mrs. A. Johnson, hostess; Mrs. K. McDermott, publicity. The meeting was then adjourned and a delicious repast was served by the committee of the evening.

Woman Dies Following Crash

Mrs. Emma A. Richards, 64, of Los Angeles, died at Mills Memorial hospital shortly after collapsing at the wheel while driving through Burlingame last Saturday. The car crashed into a tree on El Camino Real near Broadway and was damaged. An autopsy revealed that her death was caused by a cerebral hemorrhage.

Nazarene Church Grows

"We are debtors to every man to give him the gospel in the same measure as we have received it."

A few God loving and God fearing people realized this sacred responsibility and started a Sunday school work in Daly City fifteen months ago, under the supervision of the Church of the Nazarene. The class sessions were held for the first year in Eagles' Hall, where the school grew to seventy enrollment. Being handicapped by lack of space and equipment, they were forced to hunt other quarters. Through the kindness of the Methodist people, the Methodist church building on the corner of Santa Barbara and Vista Grande avenue was secured. From that time until now the work has steadily grown under the leadership of its efficient ofifcers and teachers. Even during the vacation period there has been only three Sundays when less than one hundred were present. Think of that for a record. Signs of progress are seen in every department of the work.

The Sunday school had its annual picnic last Saturday, with ninety-six present. This more than doubled the first picnic a year ago. All expressed themselves as having a wonderful time. We had a park full of fun.

Well, the Church of the Nazarene is here, and we believe it is here by Divine appointment. It is here to make Daly City a better place in which to live. It is here to better homes and increase the happiness of individuals. Therefore, we urge you to look for its arrows, listen for its bell, and stop at its services.

In order to keep pace with its growth, a revival meeting will be held between the dates August 13-27, inclusive, with Rev. F. L. Van Heck as evangelist. Rev. Van Heck is an expectionally good preacher and singer. You are cordially invited to attend these services, which will begin each evening at 7:45, except Saturday. Special music and song will be rendered at each service. Come and boost this good work with your presence.

J. M. GILL, Pastor.

EAGLES COMPLETE PLANS FOR BIG CLASS INITIATION

Daly City Eagles have completed plans for a big class initiation of new members on Thursday evening, August 24. The class is to be known as the "Fred Collins Class," in honor of Fred Collins, who has been a tireless worker for this organization for years.

September 23 has been designated as Ladies' night. On that evening members, their families and friends are to be entertained in the typical Eagle way and will be assured a good time. Otto Schramm has been appointed chairman of the committee, which is already working hard on plans for a celebration to mark the silver anniversary of the installation of Colma-Vista Grande Aerie No. 1848, Fraternal Order of Eagles, to be held next February.

CROCKER P. T. A. MEETS

The first meeting of the Crocker Parent-Teachers' Association was held in the Crocker school last Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. J. E. Walker, the re-elected presiden,ieddrspe z-gc the re-elected president, presided at the brisk business meeting. A ways and means committee was appointed to bring in new suggestions to aid the budget. The financial officers will meet with the president and Mrs. William Bolger, the district budget chairman, to compose the year's budget. New chairmen have been appointed and there are still some others to be chosen. The meeting was adjourned, to meet again on September 12 in the home of the president, Mrs. Orvilla D. Pauw, at 2 P. M. After the business meeting there will be a reception tendered the teachers of the Crocker school.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Okla.

Too many people are prone to visualize economic and political conditions as if they were bounded by their own community.

Newspapers are always the greatest asset of a community. They are ever alert to promote things of a constructive nature which tend towards greater growth, development and prosperity.

There is nothing more detrimental to society than the tolerance of lawlessness (where there is not acutally a misplaced tolerance) on the part of a state to uphold the laws. From this point of view petty breaches are as important as big ones, and may be even more so if their continual repetition brings authority into general contempt.

No citizen is so powerful, none so humble, that the city in which he lives is not an aid to him in some way.

Cities that know what they are doing and where they are going generally get somewhere.

It is not an uncommon occurrence to encounter a motorist driving at night with one light, and sometimes no light at all. There is absolutely no excuse for this practice, and the offender should be dealt with in such a manner as to make him appreciate that while he should guard his own safety, he also has a clear duty to consider the safety of others.

People will go miles to get to a good live city to trade.

THEATRE MAN INJURED IN AUTOMOBILE CRASH

A. J. Eschelbach, South San Francisco theatre man, and three Brisbane residents, are suffering from cuts and bruises received in an automobile collision on the Bayshore highway near Brisbane late Sunday. Others injured in the crash were T. T. Woolener, his wife, Freda, and Miss Edna Welch. All were treated at South San Francisco hospital.

Garbage Contract Ban Lifted

Superior Judge Maxwell McNutt last Monday terminated a writ of prohibition he previously had signed in the complaint of the South San Francisco Scavenger Company against the city of San Bruno in the granting of a garbage contract. Judge McNutt ruled that the writ was not the proper remedy, and discharged it.

Steps Into Path of Auto

Lewis Waxstock, 62, was fatallly injured last Monday as he stepped from a street car at Fifth and Market streets, San Francisco, into the path of a car driven by Lafon K. Leonard. Waxstock died at a hospital. Leonard was not held.

SAN MATEO COUNTY CAN DO IT

Next week civic leaders and their supporters in this and fifteen other communities in San Mateo county will undertake to secure one million dollars in signed pledges to renovize. Every property owner in the county will be contacted and requested to pledge himself to do his bit toward the attainment of this goal.

The purposes and necessity of the renovize movement have been made known by an extensive educational program, and two months have been spent in building up an extensive businesslike organization to carry out the pledge drive.

The arguments which have been presented to support renovizing are economically sound and appeal to the common sense. Property owners are asked to take advantage of present low building costs in making needed repairs and improvements.

The renovize movement is aimed at relieving unemployment, stimulating established business and preserving property values.

What a successful renovize drive means to a community is illustrated by the actual experience of cities in which such campaigns have been staged. The Philadelphia campaign, for instance, provided 2,900,000 man-days of work, according to a careful survey by the United States Chamber of Commerce, and business in general showed marked improvement in that area as a result of the drive.

What Philadelphia did; what Portland, Oregon did; what Washington, D. C., did, what San Francisco is planning to do; San Mateo county can do.

Contribute your bit to the million dollar goal by signing a renovize pledge.

Next Tuesday, August 15, five hundred volunteer campaign workers will start to comb San Mateo county for renovize pledges.

With a local general chairman for each separate community in the county, and team captains to lead the workers, an extensive and efficient organization is ready to take the field, declared C. C. Young, former Governor and chairman of the campaign's executive committee. Renovize leaders predicted that the county would go well over the million dollar mark set as the goal before the drive is ended. Renovize speakers and organizers have been greeted with enthusiasm and active support has been tendered the movement by the public in all parts of the county.

Wednesday evening local general chairmen met at renovize campaign headquarters in San Mateo with Governor Young for final determination of the methods to be used in the house-to-house check of property. Young emphasized the fact that the pledges for even the smallest expenditures were desired.

"To make the campaign a complete success every property owner in San Mato county should sign a pledge for some renovizing, even if it is only a five dollar job," said Young.

"It is the co-operative expenditures of many modest sums which will put business back on its feet."

"Action by the buying public at this time is the necessary counterpart of the Federal government's NRA program, and we know that every citizen in the county is anxious to do his part in the splendid effort the American people are making to regain a sound economic footing," declared the Renovize leader.

A large "thermometer" is being erected in each town and city of the county so that every community will have a daily graphic picture of the progress being made in the drive. The thermometers will indicate the total of pledges made by property owners of the community itself and the total for the county.

At cetntral county headquarters, Third Avenue and El Camino Real, San Mateo, is being erected a large out-door display board on which the progress made in each community toward its goal and the county total will be indicated.

DEATH CAR DRIVER RELEASED ON BAIL BY JUDGE FARRELL

Eric B. Fillipen, 36, of Millbrae, is at liberty on $2,500 cash bail, following his arraignment on a hit-and-run charge before Justice Edward Farrell of South San Francisco. A car driven by Filippen crashed into another on El Camino Real, resulting in the death of Ralph Battison, 31, Burlingame advertising man. Sheriff J. J. McGrath traced Filippen to a Millbrae apartment through a license plate which had been lost in the collision.

There is hardly any new stunt left for aviators except a non-stop flight around the world.

Fair Question

"When I was young the doctors said that if I didn't stop smoking I would become feeble minded."

"Well, why didn't you stop?"

Rock, Sand, Gravel, etc.

City Chap: "Say, what's the matter with the train service here? That engineer breezed past without stopping?"

The Station Master: "Aw, he's mad at me 'cause I wouldn't give him a chew of tobacco."

"Have you seen May?"

"May who?"

"Why, Mayonaise."

"No; she's dressing and won't lettuce."

The manager of a well known touring company wired to the proprietor of a small town theatre where his company was to appear:

"Would like to hold a rehearsal at your theatre tomorrow at 3 o'clock. Have your stage carpenter, chief electrician, property man and all stage hands present at that hour."

Three hours later he received the following reply:

"All right. He will be there."

Now is the time to buy your winter coal.

Bobbie: "Papa, how can you tell when men are drunk?"

Papa: "Well, my son, do you see those two men over there? Well, if you were intoxicated they would look like four."

Bobbie: "But, papa, there is only one."

Man (to photographer): "Have I the pleasant expression you require?"

The Photographer: "Perfect, sir."

"Man: "Then shoot quick. It hurts my face."
